

Psalm 65

A Prayer

All the silence of our most profound worship,
All the exuberant joy of our unbridled praise,
All the promises we have ever made,
All the hopeful prayers our hearts have whispered
    we give to You alone, our Lord, our Almighty God, our Father!

We are sin.
We are weakness.
We are deepest need in all its forms.
Yet You choose us.
You draw us near to You.
You pour out Your goodness,
    deeper and more varied than all our need.
You abundantly satisfy all our hungers with all You are.

Your creation teaches us,
    reminds us,
    engulfs us
in Your power,
    Your mystery,
    Your faithfulness, and
    Your joyful generosity.
Every sunset, every sunrise
    sings of You.
Every rainfall permeates our world with Your blessings.
Every harvest celebrates
    Your overflowing, never-failing goodness.
The pastures, the hills, the forests, and the valleys join the dance, the dance that began at creation and will never end.

*O Lord, how many are Your works!
In wisdom You have made them all.
All that is, is Yours! (Psalm 104:24, para.)*
