

Reflection on Psalm 119

Of all the verses and all the words in Psalm 119,
what draws me in is its wholeheartedness.

The psalmist is wholehearted
in his love for God's Word.

I long for his
wholeheartedness.

In God's Word we see
God's wisdom,
His strength,
His holiness,
His constancy,
His love, and
so very much more.

In other words, what draws us to God's Word is God Himself.

He is the wisdom.
He is the wonder.
He is the beauty.
He is the depth,
the mystery,
the unimaginable glory.

As we read the scriptures,
we think of Him;
we meditate on Him;
we hunger for Him.

He is the One we grow to love
wholeheartedly,
more and more and more.

*You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and
with all your might. (Deuteronomy 6:5, NASB)*
