

On the Damascus Road

Acts 9:1-20; 22:1-21; 26:9-18

I identify with Paul's experience on the road to Damascus.
I was living in the darkness of my own ignorance and
    helpless slavery to sin.
I couldn't do any better.
I couldn't be any better.

But then You came:
    Christ the Light.
As You showed me Your presence,
    You became my overwhelming reality.
You spoke my name.
    You told me Yours.
You showed me my need,
    but in pure, welcoming love.

You drew me to Yourself.
You drew me to prayer,
    to praise,
    to fellowship with other believers,
    to a greater purpose,
    to the exciting privilege of showing my world how wonderful You are.

You grew me to trust You.
You grew me to love You and to love those whom You love.
You helped me to know You better, and to long to know You better.

You are becoming more and more
    the center of my reality,
    the source of love for all my relationships,
    my greatest joy,
    my one desire,
    my only ambition.

Life is taking on a beautiful simplicity
    in You.
