

Two Worlds

In Kansas, a warm, sunny day in February is a treasure to be cherished.

And when it happens in the middle of political and social turmoil and the seeming triumph of evil, the contrast is especially gripping.

The human world is chaos.
It is small and selfish, reeking with pain and death, forever bouncing from one lie to another.
It has even corrupted the beautiful natural world, infecting it with our death and destruction (Romans 8:19-23).

But forever shining through is the glory of our Creator.

His goodness,
His greatness,
His infinite magnificence, can be experienced in every grand vista and every tiny detail.

When the human world presses in,
draw strength and refreshment from the glorious world in which we are immersed.

Thank You, Father!
